How to Be Safe.
Germany Broken, Perhaps.
Minding Your Business.
Delusions Are Comfortable.

By Arthur Brisbane

(Written Tuesday, August 12, 1919).
Today the Prince of Wales lands on this continent, not traveling incognito, as did his grandfather Edward, but coming to visit the president of the United States at the White House. This young man's traveling methods show how to eliminate danger. A warship travels ahead of his battleship, the Renown, looking for icebergs and other dangers. If the leading ship ran into an iceberg it would wireless back, presumably "Back up; we are sinking."

When the King or Queen travels by rail a dignified director of the railroad travels ahead in a locomotive. If there is a weak bridge or broken rail, the director finds it. Therefore, there is not any weak bridge.

When the King travels by motor another automobile fully equipped goes along. In case of a blowout the King steps into the other motor and goes on. This time is very precious. Being royal has its advantages while it lasts.

English writers say that Germany is "broken" in industry, finance and spirit. The rate of exchange tells the financial story. You can buy twenty-five dollars' worth of German marks for six dollars and sixty cents' worth of Swiss francs.

However, this does not mean everything. There was a day when you could buy the money and the bonds of our Northern States at a great discount. And wise Englishmen hastened to buy Confederate money and bonds. They were sure that the North was broken and must be beaten, largely because England hoped that it would be.

They still have the Confederate money, and every once in a while suggest plaintively that United States ought to take it up at par.

Mr. Taft is against government ownership of railroads on the plan suggested by workers through their representative, Glenn E. Plumb. He says, "We should not let the soviet system gain even a toe hold in America." Mr. Taft, earnest, honest, sincere, should know that calling American workmen Bolsheviks because they venture to suggest a workable honest system of government ownership is not the way to keep the soviet from getting its toe hold.

Mr. Taft advocates a League of Nations that would put the United States treasury and the young men of the United States at the disposition of foreign countries, including countries openly governed by the socialism that he so much dreads over here.

Americans willing to do so much for everybody outside of America are horrified when it is suggested that something should be done for millions of workmen inside of America. Why?

Our blessed American democracy does queer things when it breaks loose and becomes an international hero and benefactor. We use our influence and army to make Kolchak ruler of Russia. His success means another Russian autocracy, another collection of thievish Grand Dukes. But he won't succeed. No hand-picked rule could solve that Russian problem. Russia, herself, not the United States will select the man.

In Hungary this country and the Allies are proud of themselves for having "restored order" in Budapest, making one of the archdukes the leading figure. The reactionaries celebrate the happy occasion, as the Associated Press shows, by beating Jews in the streets with dog whips; the Rumanian troops, agent of the Allies, as the Associated Press says, "looking on laughingly and inciting the Hungarians to further attacks on the Jews."

Finck Sam in a moment of leisure ought to read about the man that got rich by minding his own business.

The King of Saxony adds a chapter to the Romance of Science. He had a treasure in Germany and wanted it out. The Prince of Wied took it up in a flying machine, flew to the south coast of Sweden and dropped the treasure, a big bundle of bonds, near the edge of the Baltic, where a German couple, faithful to the King, had been planted to wait for it. That is as good as an old fairy story.

Here are two quotations: "We are such things as dreams are made of."

REDS LOSING ON RUSSIAN BATTLE LINE

(ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH)
HELSINGFORS, Finland, August 19.—The Bolshevik battleship Andromeda, Petrovsk, the battle cruiser Petropavlovsk, a transport and a guard ship are reported to have been sunk during an engagement with the British fleet in the Gulf of Finland on Sunday.

The British are said to have lost three motorboats and to have had eight officers and three men killed.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, August 19.—British aircraft co-operating with the new Northwestern Russian anti-Bolshevik government and with the Estonians in a concerted movement on Petrograd, carried out a 14-hour bombing raid on Kronstadt, the naval fortress guarding the former capital.

Large sections of Kronstadt burst into flames. At one time no fewer than eight seaplanes and airplanes dropped bombs simultaneously upon the burning town.

The fires were fanned by a stiff breeze, and at sundown the city appeared to be in a huge blazing furnace set in a water area of more than two square miles. It is believed Kronstadt was devastated.

The aviators escaped the anti-aircraft fire but three machines crashed when returning to their base.

One seaplane was picked up by a destroyer. The pilot was uninjured, but one naval lieutenant and another pilot were killed.

LONDON, August 19.—The Bolshevik have been driven from Odessa by the populace of the city, according to reports received by the British war office.

It is reported also that the soviet forces are evacuating Kiev and the entire Ukraine.

JOSEPH IS TIRED.

BUDAPEST, August 19.—Archduke Joseph has agreed to resign as (temporary) director of the Hungarian government because of the socialist objections to him, but consented to remain in office for the time being when present members and leaders of the reactionary party protested. They declared they would cause the food blockade against Budapest to be re-established unless he continued to act as regent.

WARSAW, August 19.—Hostilities broke out today between the Germans and the Poles on the southern Silesian frontier, the Germans suddenly attacking the Polish lines and occupying two villages. The Polish population rose and drove them out and occupied two villages on the German side of the line of demarcation.

U. S. STEAMER BURNS.

HAVRE, France, August 19.—Fire which badly damaged the American tank steamer George G. Henry, and destroyed merchandise on the docks valued at 500,000 francs today, was caused by oil from the tanker catching fire when an unloading pipe broke. The burning oil flooded the pier to which the steamer was moored.

"There is nothing either good or bad but thinking makes it so."

Take, for instance, Ralph Blakelock, who died two days ago miserably poor. He had spent eighteen years in the insane asylum perfectly blissful because he believed himself to be the richest man in the world. "Friends" got him out, almost cured him and, after hard work, made him understand that he had not a dollar, and that he depended on charity. Having had the matter carefully explained to him, Blakelock died.

If a man has an idea that gives him real comfort, be careful about taking it from him; you may not be doing him a favor. Ingersoll and others have failed to understand that.

Strike Leader and Prominent Actors Who Backed Him Up.

Imbued with the strike spirit New York's actors darkened a number of well-known Broadway theatres. This photograph shows some of the prominent actors who are "out," just. ## PRESIDENT TELLS COMMITTEE OF BAD EFFECT OF DELAY IN ACTION ON TREATY UPON U. S. INDUSTRY

(ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCH)
WASHINGTON, August 19.—President Wilson began his conference with the senate foreign relations committee at the White House today with an opening statement on the peace treaty and the league of nations. He said:

"Mr. Chairman: I am sincerely glad that this committee should have responded in this way to my intimation that I would like to be of service to it. I welcome the opportunity for a frank and full interchange of views."

"I hope, too, that this conference will serve to expedite your consideration of the treaty of peace. I beg that you will pardon and indulge me if I again urge that practically the whole task of bringing the country back to normal conditions of life and industry, waits upon the decision of the senate with regard to the terms of the peace."

Urges Action.

"I venture thus again to urge my advice that the action of the senate with regard to the treaty be taken at the earliest practicable moment because the problems with which we are face to face in the readjustment of our national life are of the most pressing and critical character, will require for their proper solution the most intimate and disinterested co-operation of all parties and all interests and cannot be postponed without manifest peril to our people and to all the national advantages we hold most dear. May I mention a few of the matters which cannot be handled with intelligence until the country knows the character of the peace it is to have? I do so only by a very few examples."

Effect on Industry.

"The copper mines of Montana and Alaska, for example, are being kept open and in operation only at a great cost and loss, in part upon borrowed money, the zinc mines of Missouri, Tennessee and Wisconsin are being operated at about one-half their capacity; the lead of Idaho, Illinois and Missouri ranches only a portion of its former market; there is an immediate need for cotton belling and also for lubricating oil which cannot be met—all because the channels of trade are barred by war when there is no war. The same is true of raw cotton of which the central empire alone formerly purchased nearly four million bales. And these are only examples. There is hardly a single raw material, a single important foodstuff or a single class of manufactured goods which is not in the same case. Our full, normal profitable production waits peace."

Military Plans Wait.

"Our military plans of course wait upon it. We cannot intelligently or wisely decide how large a naval or military force we shall maintain or what our policy with regard to military training is to be until we have peace, not only, but also, until we know how peace is to be sustained, whether by the arms or single nations or by the concert of all the great peoples. And there is more than difficulty involved. The vast surplus properties of the army include not food and clothing merely, whose sale will affect normal production but great manufacturing establishments also should be restored to their former uses, great stores of machine tools, and all sorts of merchandise which must lie idle until peace and military policy are definitely determined. By the same token there can be no properly studied national budget until then."

Advantage to Allies.

"The nations that ratify the treaty, such as Great Britain, Belgium and France, will be in a position to lay their plans for controlling the markets of Central Europe without co-operation from us if we do not presently act. We have no consular agents, no trade representatives there to look after our interests. There are large areas of Europe whose future will lie uncertain and questionable until their people know the final settlements of peace and the forces which are to administer and sustain it without determinate markets our production cannot proceed with intelligence or confidence. There can be no stabilization of wages because there can be no settled conditions of employment. There can be no easy or normal industrial credits, because there can be no confidence or permanent revival of business."

But I will not weary you with obvious examples. I will only venture to repeat that every element of normal life amongst us depends upon and awaits the ratification of the treaty of peace. And also that we cannot afford to lose a single summer's day by not doing all that we can to mitigate the winter's suffering which unless we find means to prevent it, may prove disastrous to a large portion of the world, and may, at its worst, bring upon Europe con-

Murder Laid to Black Handers

ALLIANCE, O., August 19.—Joe Buttore, 44, who, the police say, has been hounded by the "Black Hand" for ten years was murdered this morning while on his way to work. He was shot six times.

The attack, police say, is the ninth made on Buttore's life, as he survived eight other vicious assaults with stilettes and pistols.

Two men shot him today and then made their escape. Policemen and firemen are scouring the city and vicinity for the slayers.

STRIKE OF RAPID TRANSIT TRAINMEN IS DECLARED OFF

NEW YORK, Aug. 19.—With the two days strike of the 14,000 employees of the Interborough Rapid Transit company at an end and normal traffic resumed on subway and elevated lines, attention was centered today on investigations as to the cause of the strike.

District Attorneys Swann, of New York county, and Martin of the Bronx continued their investigations charges made by Mayor Hyland, that the strike had been due to collusion between officials of the company and leaders of the brotherhood for the purpose of making an increase of fares from five to eight cents.

Mr. Swann summoned more than 50 witnesses to testify before a grand jury. Members of the brotherhood who are said to have declared that they were paid for striking were questioned by Mr. Martin. The strikers were granted a 25 per cent increase, half what they asked.

STEEL MAGNATE DIES.

GARY, Ind., Aug. 19.—Henry G. Hay, senior of New York, assistant treasurer of the United States steel corporation died of heart disease here yesterday at the residence of his son Henry G. Hay Jr. Before going to New York in 1903 Mr. Hays was a resident of Cheyenne, Wyoming, where he was engaged in banking.

AMERICAN AVIATORS HELD BY BANDITS ARE RESCUED BY BEARERS OF RANSOM

"Punitive" Expedition Moves Early Tuesday Across the Line—Yankee Air-men's Experience

CANDELARIA, Texas, Aug. 19.—(Via Army Field Telephone to Marfa)—Troops of the eighth cavalry crossed the Mexican border at 6:40 o'clock this morning in pursuit of the bandits who held aviators Peterson and Davis for ransom. Davis and Peterson accompanied the troops, acting as guides.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 19.—The American punitive expedition into Mexico, after the bandits who held the two American aviators, is being conducted with the full knowledge of authorities in Washington, who have been withholding announcement from the governments purpose until the two Americans were safe.

Secretary Baker on reading the Associated Press dispatches from Marfa, announced that the American troops went over on specific instructions from the war department, but withheld further official announcement until he has received official word from the border.

MARFA, Texas, Aug. 19.—Lieutenants H. G. Peterson and Paul H. Davis, aviators of the United States army, held captive for more than a week by Mexican bandits, who demanded a ransom of $15,000 were rescued early this morning by Captain Matlack, of the eighth cavalry and are safe in American territory.

Captain Matlack brought back with him one half the ransom money. He said after Peterson had been released, Davis was brought forward by the bandits and the two mounted Captain Matlack's horse. The bandits demanded the remainder of the ransom money and Captain Matlack and Davis answered by riding rapidly away.

The aviators landed on the American side of the river. Lieutenant Peterson said. Upon their arrival at Candelaria a week ago Sunday their engine developed trouble and they were forced to land, smashing their land gear and fuselage in doing so.

The two aviators then tried to find their way to the nearest army camp and became confused. They walked and swam down the Rio Grande during Monday, Lieutenant Peterson said, and then hired Mexican burrows after Peterson developed a fever. They had started for Candelaria when an armed Mexican overtook them and made them prisoners. They were unarmed. They were overtaken by a band of armed bandits, Lieutenant Peterson said, and a crowd of people from a little town. They continued on their forced journey until Friday night, when the bandits compelled the

The leader of the bandits, he said, had worked on a railroad in Kansas and lost a hand and foot in an accident there. The messages were sent to the border by messengers Sunday. Peterson immediately sent a message to his father at Hutchinson, Minnesota, saying "Feeling fine. Had wonderful experience." Davis also sent a similar message to his parents at Strathmore, California. Captain Matlack returned with Davis at 2 o'clock this morning, both men riding the captain's horse. According to the agreement, Captain Matlack made the journey into the Mexican rendezvous unaccompanied. He was to pay over $7500 for the release of one aviator and then the remainder when the second aviator was released.

AVIATORS BECOME CONFUSED IN THE AIR

Captain Matlack said the two aviators landed in Mexico, contradicting the story of Lieutenant Peterson. He said the aviators were of the opinion they had landed in the United States until they reached the border early this morning. The aviators the captain said, had become confused while in the air and had mistaken the Conchos river for the Rio Grande. Instead of landing near Candelaria, as they thought, they had landed at a point near Falmor Chihuahua, more than 40 miles up the Conchos river where they abandoned their wrecked airplane after stripping it of machine

THREATENED WITH DEATH BY CAPTORS

The Americans, told once to signals from the bandits by means of flares. At the same time Renteria was to start from the Mexican side with the Americans. They were to meet and exchange prisoners and money.

Captain Matlack's ruse by which he saved $7,500 was contrived on the spur of the moment after he had escorted Peterson across the border.

"I just decided that was no use in paying those Mexicans that other $7,500, after I had Davis, so I told him to jump on behind on my horse. I spurred him hard and we made a wild dash for the border and made it. They called for us to halt but I said 'go to hell' and crossed."

Lieutenant Peterson crossed the border to the American side at 1:15 a. m. and Captain Matlack brought back Lieutenant Davis 45 minutes later.

STEEL WORKERS IN OHIO DISTRICT VOTE TO STRIKE, CLAIM

YOUNGSTOWN, Aug. 19.—Representatives of 25 steel workers unions forming a national executive committee began arriving here today for the conference to be held under Chairman John Fitzpatrick, to canvass the strike vote recently taken in the steel industry and to make a decision as to a nation-wide steel strike. Organizers in the Ohio district declare that the vote has been overwhelmingly in favor of a strike and say reports from other districts indicate will likely result. The first meeting of the committee which is composed of presidents of 25 unions or their representatives will be held at noon tomorrow.

The organization represented in connection with the unions are blacksmiths, boiler makers, brick layer workers, bridge and structural iron workers, carpenters, electrical workers, foundrymen, iron and steel mill workers, machinists, metal polishers, mill and smaller boiler makers, pattern makers, plumbers and steam fitters, quarry workers, railway carmen, steel metal workers, stationary fitters, steam engineers, steam shovel and dredge men and watchmen.

BRIGANDS ON WARPATH.
PARIS, Aug. 19.—Moroccan bandits under command of their leader, Rais, are reported to have ambushed a Spanish force accompanying a road convoy between the towns of Agadir and Tantan killing 12 officers and wounding a number of officers being among the casualties. The column escaped.

PRESIDENT TALKS TO SENATORS ON PEACE TREATY

ditions even more terrible than those wrought by the war itself.

Danger Is Reservation.
"It has several times been suggested in public debate and in private conference, that interpretations of the sense in which the United States accepts the engagements of the covenant should be embodied in the instrument of ratification. There can be no reasonable objection to such interpretations accompanying the act of ratification provided they do not form a part of the formal ratification itself. Most of the interpretations which have been suggested to me embody what seems to me the plain meaning of the instrument itself. But if such interpretations should constitute a part of the formal ratification, long delays would be the inevitable consequence, inasmuch as all the many governments concerned would have to accept, in effect, the language of the senate as the language of the treaty before ratification would be complete. The assent of the German assembly at Weimar would have to be obtained among the rest and I must frankly say that I could only with the greatest reluctance approach that assembly for permission to read the treaty as we understand it and as those who framed it quite certainly understood it. If the United States were to qualify the document in any way, moreover, I am confident from what I know of the many conferences and debates which accompanied the formulation of the treaty that our example would immediately be followed in many quarters, in some instances with very serious reservations and that the meaning and operative force of the treaty would presently be clouded from one end of its clauses to the other. Pardon me, Mr. Chairman, if I have been too freely unsolicited and plain spoken in speaking of the great matters we all have so much at heart. If excuse is needed, I trust that the critical situation of affairs may serve as justification. The issues that manifestly hang upon the conclusions of the senate with regard to peace and upon the time of its action are so grave and so clearly upon the side of being thrust on our side of the post that I have felt it necessary to the public interest to make this urgent plea, and to make it as simply and as unreservedly as possible."

Details of Treaty.
President Wilson told the foreign relations committee at the outset of his conference today that he could see no reasonable objection to interpretations of how the United States accepts the league of nations, provided such interpretations did not form a part of the formal ratification itself. If interpretations were part of the formal ratification, the president contended long delays would follow as other governments would have to accept in effect the language of the senate as the language of the treaty before ratification would be complete.

Most of the interpretations the president advanced seemed to him to suggest the plain meaning of the instrument itself.

The much discussed article on the president told the senators was not of doubtful interpretation when read in connection with the whole covenant. The council he said could not advise and its action must be unanimous. The affirmative vote of the United States would be necessary to any question affecting it.

Article 16, the president said, provides that where there is a dispute found to be solely within the jurisdiction of one of the parties under international law the league council shall so report and make no recommendation for its settlement. Immigration, tariffs and the like, the president said, clearly came under that provision.

Senators Ask Questions.
After the president had delivered his statement, Senator Lodge said:

"Mr. President so far as I am personally concerned—and I think I represent perhaps the majority of the committee in that respect—we have no thought of entering upon arguments as to interpretations or points of that character; but the committee was very desirous of getting information on certain points which seem not clear and on which they sought information would be of value to have in consideration of the treaty which they, I think I may say, for myself and others, desire to hasten in every possible way."

"Your reference to the necessity of action leads me to ask one question. If we have to restore peace to the world it is necessary I assume that there should be treaties with Austria, Hungary, Turkey and Bulgaria. Those treaties are all more or less connected with the treaty with Germany. The question I should like to ask is what the prospects are of receiving those treaties for action."

The president: "I think it is very good to ask, and so far as I can judge from the contents of the dispatches from my colleagues on the other side of the water, the chief delay is due to the uncertainty as to what is going to happen to this treaty. This treaty is a model of the others I saw enough of the others before I left Paris to know that they are being framed in some set of principles and that the treaty with Germany is the model. I think that is the chief element of delay, sir."

Senator Lodge:
"They are not regarded as essential to the consideration of this treaty."

The president: "They are not regarded as such, no sir, they follow this treaty."

Senator Lodge: "I do not know about the other treaties but the treaty with Poland, for example, has been completed."

The president: "Yes and signed, but it is dependent upon this treaty being thought of as submitted to the action of this treaty."

Senator Lodge then asked whether the president could show the committee the tentative league of nations draft submitted by Great Britain to France and Italy.

Terms Explained.
The president then explained in detail the contents of the drafts presented by the various countries. Senator Lodge then asked whether the United States would receive any part of the German reparations fund.

The president: "I left that question open Senator because I did not feel that I had any final right to decide it. Upon the basis that was set up in the reparations clauses the portion that the United States would receive would be very small at best and my own judgment was frequently expressed not as a decision but as a judgment that we should claim nothing from those general clauses and that because I coveted the moral advantage that that would give us in the councils of the world."

Senator McComb: "Did that mean we would claim nothing for the sinking of the Lusitania?"

The president: "Oh, no. That and no other questions of that sort at all."

The president added that pre-war claims were not covered by the reparations clause and said the reparations commission would decide. He repeated that American participation in the reparations remained to be decided.

Senator Lodge: "By the commission?"

The president: "By the commission."

TAXICAB FARES TO BE REGULATED.
City council, next Monday night, will regulate the price of fare in taxicabs, according to an announcement made last night following a petition which was presented council, by the safety committee last night, in which they ask that a license of $1 be placed upon all taxicabs operating on the city streets, and that the Safety Director be instructed to route these cabs.

This last suggestion was never fully understood, and it was referred to the city solicitor who will give more light on the matter next Monday night.

We Have Taken a

—We did this and do it now for the principal reason that we desire to well deserve a larger share of the people's patronage and to firmly assure our continued growth.

—And of course, we considered that it was the right thing and the patriotic thing to day.

—We believe that the progress of the world is largely due to the exercise of intelligent selfishness as distinguished from unenlightened or vicious selfishness.

—And it follows that a business policy of accepting as low a profit as can justly or consistently be taken, that thereby lowers prices, that repels the temptation to grab all the profits that can be wrung from the public, and that still maintains a good quality merchandise standard and a reasonably efficient, cooperative service—such a policy of enlightened selfishness is bound to strike a responsive public chord and promote business success.

—It surely has done and is doing so in this store.

—Our policy will continue to succeed because it is founded on the belief in the intelligence of the public—that the public will buy where they can buy lowest, equal quality considered.

—In celebrating the 15th anniversary we offer good, clean, lower than normal prices in every department of the store—in many instances very much lower.

—Our growing business shows that the people recognize that our underpricing, non-profiteering policy is saving them money.

Those Who Will Visit Battlefields

STARS AND STRIPES, the newspaper printed by the American Expeditionary Forces, in its last issue, commenting upon the scenes the boys were leaving said that "the misery has become picturesque; the horror has been hallowed; the murder has turned to romance." It called attention to the fact that the tourists will now begin visiting the battlefields, and added:

"Many will come to Belleau wood who have read all about the great war. These people will see the twisted trees, but they won't see the sprawling towns beneath them. They will see the bullet-bitten rocks, but they can never visualize the trembling horror of lying in those crevices while the German guns spat their death through the grass. Here and there they may pick up an empty shell, but the fingerless hand protruding from the rotting khaki blouse has been buried beneath a neat white cross. The home folks can never feel all this beside their friendly hearths. Nobody under God's great, tranquil skies can tell of the rottenness of war but the men who suffered through it. The Prussian Guard did hard fighting for these places, and the men in frock coats who make the laws never had to stand up against him. We know, but we cannot give that knowledge to others. But upon it we can act; there must be such conscience for peace that no one will dare oppose it."

May be it is just as well; may it be better thus. Only the stout of heart could withstand the strain of, looking at this ragged, crippled land where our beloved fell, they could sense the misery of it all. These soldiers who passed through it will know throughout their lives a tremendous secret the rest of us will never know.

A United Town

"IF WE CAN get everybody in this town to fighting us," muses the editor of the Eldorado News, "we will at least have performed the miracle of having them all together on one subject for the first time." Just how well he is succeeding, we do not know, but his proposition is worth considering.

The trouble with towns and cities is that the people will not get together upon even the questions vitally affecting the welfare of the place. Not long ago a magazine writer gave a list of some of the decaying towns and cities in this country and showed that in each instance it was due to the opposition of somebody. One town missed being the county seat because of the selfishness of one man; another place failed to be the state capital because opposition to a railroad caused another city to outgrow it; still another small city has been sidetracked these past twenty years and declined because of a division of the citizenship upon the question of a bond issue to build a bridge.

It might do a lot of good to have the people of a place united even in their bitterness against an editor, and if an editor thought that it would unite them he would be as willing as the Eldorado man to undertake the job. Indeed, it would afford an editor a lot of personal pleasure to have everybody fighting him, for then he would not have to take care of anybody in his contentions.

Heroism Brings its Reward

THE BRITISH government has rewarded a German hero—given him his freedom, bestowed upon him a sum of money and a watch engraved with a record of his heroism, and sent him home rejoicing, which shows that it doesn't make any difference about a man's nationality, if he is really a hero.

The fellow was a prisoner in an English camp. An English aviator fell in his machine and was about to be burned to death. The German rushed to his aid, and at great personal risk saved the man's life, receiving injuries in doing so. Just a plain case of heroism, with never a thought that the endangered man was an enemy, with never any hesitations, or thought as to personal safety. And the reward was given in the same spirit, with never a hint that the hero had lately been engaged in a contest to take the life of the man he now risked his own life to save.

This is not the only instance of the kind that happened during the war. There were many similar cases; heroes there were in all the armies of all the nations. Indeed it was these instances of heroism, where enemy risked his life to save the life of an enemy, that gave to war its only tinge of godliness. For it is greater heroism to save the life of an enemy than of a friend, and it is said in Sacred Literature that "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends."

Lodge Sticks to His Sophistry

HENRY CABOT LODGE, the "scholar in politics" in the role of a querulous child, is not an impressive but a pathetic figure. The other day when he was questioning someone before his committee on the league of nations, the witness suggested that a certain question could best be answered by the president, and that the president had agreed to testify. Very angrily Mr. Lodge again reiterated his stupid statement that the president had made no such promise. Everyone knows the contrary to be true—including Henry Cabot Lodge. In his address to the senate on July 10 the president said:

"My services and all the information I possess will be at your disposal and at the disposal of your committee on foreign relations, at any time, either informally or in session."

How perfectly stupid the insistence of Lodge that the president had not offered to testify before the committee. The fact is that Lodge and his packed committee were afraid to give the president a chance to stand beside them for measurement. Lodge was quick to announce that the president would not be asked to appear. Then the common sense of the nation was heard from—one common expression of disgust. It was only then that the senator discovered that the president had never offered to appear. The miserable child play of the opposition senators is disgraceful where it is not cowardly.

HOW COCOA AND CHOCOLATE DIFFER FROM EACH OTHER

By DR. LEONARD KEENE HIRSHBERG

A. B., M. A., M. D. (John Hopkins University)

Most persons either are ignorant of, or confused about the fine distinctions between cocoa, cacao or cacao and chocolate.

The seeds of the overgrown bush, called theobroma cacao, or the cooked seeds from which a good part of the oils and fats are removed, are what you buy as cocoa.

Chocolate, on the other hand, is the mashed, pasty kernels of the roasted seeds of the same little tree from which none of the fat has been separated.

Chocolate is thus finely ground kernels and is bitter. Sugar and flavors are added to it to make it the delectable thing you crave.

Chocolate, or preferably cacao kernels and seeds ground into a fine putty, was originally an American contribution to Europe. Tobacco made more of an add-on, but the Indians, Incas and Aztecs, used it as a wonderful beverage, which early Spanish explorers had difficulty to prove to Europeans was almost a gift of the gods. They took preferably to tobacco.

Pharmacologically or physiologically, chocolate and cocoa are foods, the former to be sure, much more nutritious because of the fat in it.

There is much more to chocolate, however, than this. For many persons it is a tonic to the flesh and it is said to have cured many cases of malnutrition and emaciation. Moreover, chocolate and cocoa contain some of the virtues and less of the injunctives of tea and coffee. The caffeine of theine, which are powerful alkaloids of coffee and tea are present in chocolate as theobromine. Caffeine or theobromine has been tested in the psychological laboratories as well as in the laboratories of physiology, pharmacology and the clinics. The unanimously confirmed results prove that chocolate with its alkaloid increase endurance, add to precision, improve muscular skill, strengthens the memory and intellectual processes and adds to steadiness and the power of concentration. Phosphate of potash and other mineral fertilizers are present sufficiently to keep the blood and tissue well supplied with this much needed salt. It is hardly necessary to say that there is another plant, entirely different and really dangerous, called the coca plant, from which the habit-forming drug cocaine is obtained.

Answers to Health Questions.

Q—What can I do for epilepsy?

A—Epilepsy of a special kind is cured by surgical measures. Much help comes to others at times from the use of bromides, especially the effervescent bromide tablets in Plenty of water should be drunk, three quarts a day. The intestines should be always kept active. No muscular work or housework may be done and no meat usually eaten. The diet is not essential other than the avoidance of gluttony and excesses, or the artificial stimulation of tobacco and other drugs.

He cannot always undertake to provide or offer advice for individual cases. Where the subject is not of general interest, letters will be answered personally. ## JUST AS MEDICINE

Hana was speaking about the high price of cabbage in his town.

"Kebbeges is awful high this year," he said. "Me and mine wife puts up seven, eight, nine barrels of sauerkraut every year—but we can't do this year. De kebbses cost too much."

"But you put up some sauerkraut didn't you, Hana?" questioned a friend.

"Oh, yes, two or three barrels—just to half in de house in case of sickness."—Pittsburgh Chronicle-Telegraph.

THE FIRST SHAVE

It was a proud day for young Jones. For some time he had suspected, when he stroked his chin, that there was something there, and now he was certain of it.

With the temerity of fearful joy he pushed open the door of the barber shop, and breathed again when he found he was the only customer.

Calmly he took possession of the operating chair, and the towel had just been placed beneath his chin, when—horror!—the door opened, and in stalked three of his office colleagues.

"Shave, sir!" said the barber to the horror-stricken Jones.

"No-no-no," blurted out the unfortunate youth, in desperation. "I face washed, please."—Exchange.

PIONEER CHURCH IN FRANKLIN COUNTY.

The Presbyterians are entitled to the credit of being the pioneers in religious work through a regularly organized church at the capital of the state, and in fact in Franklin county. Though Lucas Sullivant laid out Franklinton in 1797 there was no church there for seven years, nor was there such an institution in all of Franklin county.

In 1805 the Presbyterian general assembly sitting at Philadelphia sent Rev. James Hoge as a missionary into the opening Ohio country, and for the next two years he traveled as such. Franklinton was reached by the missionary on November 19, 1805, and the very next day he preached in the house of one John Overdier, the same house being used at the time by the federal court.

Building on the foundations laid by Rev. Hoge, Rev. Robt. G. Wilson, of Chillicothe, presided over exercises formally establishing the Presbyterian church of Franklinton on February 18, 1806. At that time the population of Franklin county was about 2,000. The services of the Franklinton church were held in private houses of its members until 1811, when a brick structure, built mainly through the liberality of the founder of the village, Lucas Sullivant, was completed.

But the next year the war of 1812 breaking out, and Franklinton being a military rendezvous, the church building was seized by the government for use for the storage supplies. In this use it was badly damaged, but the government made good the loss to the congregation. In 1815 a new church was built on the corner near the old Franklinton graveyard, and occupied. The next year Columbus was laid out on the opposite side of the river to be the capital of the state and grew so fast that the church began to think of moving across the river. Rev. Hoge owned a lot near Spring and Third streets and there he built a log cabin in which services were held by him on alternate Sundays—still continuing the work on the Franklinton side; but soon a more expensive church was erected near Town and Front streets and given the name of the First Presbyterian church of Columbus. The records of the Presbytery show that in 1821 Rev. Hoge resigned as the pastor of the church at Franklinton and that probably marks the date of the final removal of the church organization across the river.

They never reached the office, though. From a group sitting under one of the huge shade trees along the walk they heard someone call, "Jeanne."

They turned in time to see a great

OUR BED-TIME STORY FOR THE TIMES-DEMOCRAT FOLKS

Jeanne was so happy, she started crying for joy, when she heard that her father was in a hospital near Paris waiting for her.

Jack and Jane and their friends had fallen in love with the little French girl on their travels while trying to help her find her parents, so they, too, were awfully glad.

As soon as Captain Brave had finished reading the other mail they all climbed into the airplane and started big soldier breaking away from the group and rushing toward them. When Jeanne saw him she uttered a glad cry and ran to meet him. I don't need to tell you that it was her father. She was so happy to see him that she noticed nothing wrong about him until he stooped to pick her up. Then she noticed that only one arm went about her. The other arm was missing. After loads of hugs and kisses, such as you and your daddy would have if you hadn't seen each other for years, Jeanne brought her father over to the children and their friends and told him who they were and how they had been the ones who really found him for her.

The happy party sat down while Jeanne told her father, how her friends had found her and how they had been kind enough to take her with them on their travels to help her find her mother and father. Then they told all about their experiences from the time they left Vienna until Captain Brave had received the letter from the doctor at the hospital in Rheims.

"I am awfully glad we found you," said Jeanne to her father, "but wouldn't it have been fine if we had found mother, too, so we could all be together again?"

Then her father who had been smiling during the most of the story, said, "Well, I have a surprise for you. I can't tell you what it is; you will have to wait and see."

It wasn't a long wait, though, for presently along the walk came a woman and Jeanne knew who she was before she had come within speaking distance. It was Jeanne's mother.

Now, everybody was happier than ever, for Jeanne and her mother and father were together again at last, and Jack and Jane and their friends had done what they had hoped to do. They had found Jeanne's parents for her.

PRINCE OBJECTS TO PERSIAN SITUATION

Son of King of Hedjas Will Resume Place at Head of the Delegation in Paris

PARIS, Aug. 19.—Prince Faisal, son of Hussein Ben Ali, king of the Hedjas, will embark at Beirut today to come to Paris and resume his place at the head of the Arab delegation. He is dissatisfied with the settlement of Syrian and Persian questions, according to the French press.

The aspirations of France in Syria are being discussed by French newspapers in connection with the Anglo-Persian agreement which is the chief subject of discussion in peace conference circles. Generally the agreement is looked upon as providing for a British protectorate in Persia.

Until the Persian treaty is ratified delegates to the peace conference think it is improbable that it will come formally before the conference, although it is of first importance in the question of the dismemberment of Turkey. The situation regarding Turkey apparently is deadlocked until the United States decides whether it will accept a mandate for Armenia or otherwise.

Several French newspapers, in discussing the departure of Prince Faisal for Paris, declare that France cannot deal with "British agents," but must press her claims to Syria before all the allies.

LIMA WOMEN ARE INVITED TO COUNCIL

All the "fair sex" in the city of Lima will be given an opportunity to witness council enact laws for the municipality at its first meeting in September, which will occur the first Tuesday night instead of the regular first Monday, as that day is Labor Day.

It was cited that there are hundreds of women in the city interested in politics, and they have never been given the opportunity seeing council at work. So when the question was submitted it passed unanimously.

FAUROT—WALLACE REID

Save for a safe-cracking scene and a small portion of time devoted to a railroad merger, "You're Fired" which opened at the Faurot this afternoon, attends strictly to the excellent business of keeping the spectator in a hilarious mood. O. Henry's story of "The Halberdier" gives Wallace Reid one of the best roles that has fallen to his portion. Created for the sole purpose of amusement this Paramount picture is full of sprightly fun and can snap all its fingers in the face of probability or possibility either.

No young chap before Noah was a sailor or since ever had any of the adventures which befall the hero of "You're Fired." But that is the chief charm of O. Henry: He can tell the most unlikely things about the most likable of people, and make them seem the most natural happenings in the world.

Wallace Reid as a wealthy young idler pounding away like a star performer on a xylophone in order to furnish his part of the dance music in an orchestra that is hired to play at a house where the young fellow has always before been a guest might appear a trifle far-fetched if it were not for the ease with which the star carries off the situation. Comedy acting of this nature requires the light touch that never fails to register the first time and is never anything but just right. Wallace Reid has developed this touch to perfection, and was presented at birth with certain advantages of a person of character which have grown with his growth.

To be blessed with youth, two straight legs, one straight nose and enough good looks to make him a suitable screen lover for the lovely and desirable Wanda Hawley is to have more than a fair share of fortune's smiles. Wallace and Wanda make a handsome couple, and their film friends will wish them much joy when their screen romance closes with the promise of orange blossoms and wedding bells.

Artistic direction in all departments of production and able support by Henry Woodward as Tom, Theodore Roberts as Gordon Rogers, Lillian Mason as Mrs. Oglethorpe, Raymond Hutton as Orchestra Leader and William Lesta as the restaurant proprietor have been furnished "You're Fired."

Added features of the program include the Pathe News and James Montgomery Flagg's clever comedy, "The Con in Economy."

XIII.—I MEET A MATCH.

The Merediths were having coffee in the library when the maid announced me.

Fan sprang up and kissed me as spontaneously as though we had not clasped earlier in the day. But she gave me a curious, half-mocking glance.

"Awfully glad you could side-step domesticity for one evening, Nell," she said pointedly. "Here's Alice and Martin who've not seen you since the wedding, and Billy—simply dying to view the effects of matrimony."

Alice Lloyd embraced me warmly and Martin Fendall, one of Paul's erstwhile ushers, wrung my hand.

"I love you and Tindall a big debt, Ned," he declared. "It won't Alice over."

"Really?" I gasped. "Alice, you never told me."

"Oh, it's not formally announced yet," protested Alice, with a charming flush, "and the whole affair is very indefinite."

"Trust the atmosphere of orange blossoms to get some poor devil into trouble," said Billy Meredith, as he grasped my hand. "You owe me a kiss, young woman, for the one you ducked at your wedding reception."

I swerved nimbly and avoided proximity with his round ruddy countenance. Meredith never missed an excuse to kiss me—or any woman, for that matter, especially when he had been drinking. If I were arriving or departing or merely tarrying, it was one and the same to him. There are many men of that type. Not really licentious, but taking vicarious pleasure in pseudo-lovemaking. Fan, being extraordinarily sensible, had always completely ignored this trait in Billy.

It was also typical of Fan to create an atmosphere for her coup. She waited until the ripple of my arrival had subsided before motioning toward a tall figure in uniform.

"Let me present Captain Frazier. He is the real host of the evening."

The captain bowed over my hand with a slight smile which I thought half satirical.

"Charmed, Mrs. Tindall. So good of you to join our party."

"But not at all," I protested. "You rescued me from a tiresome evening."

"So soon?" with raised eyebrows. "Didn't I understand that you were recently married?"

"Why remind me of my misfortune?" I queried lightly.

He smiled politely.

"What a little girl to be so cynical," he swept my befful length with an amused glance and turned to Fan with an indifference that made me furious.

Looking back now, I realize that indifference will pique the most experienced of women. In her heart of hearts she knows that frequently it is merely assumed by the clever male while he gets his bearings, but none the less the fury it rouses in her is elemental. Stupid men and very young women affect it under the fond delusion that it will attract the object of their misplaced affection. Even women, who should know better, employ it as a desperate resort when they see their prey slip away from them. But indifference is akin to rudeness and people only bother to be rude to other people they care about.

Captain Frazier, all too evidently worldly and experienced, had taken me from head to toe in one keen scrutiny, and passed me up with a glance saying plainly as words, "Don't try to vamp me, child. You are too young and I am too clever."

THE NEWS.

It must be told now, thought Annie and here in the dim spring night on the river would be a sweet time and place. Bashfully and haltingly she imparted her secret and waited her eyes starry-bright for his answer.

"No!" Bernie shouted. "You don't mean it! Well, for God's sake!"

It was not the ideal response, but Annie made allowance for his surprise.

"But you're glad, aren't you, Bern?" I am—terribly, terribly glad!"

He was silent, rowing fast. As they crossed a gleam of light from an open boathouse door Annie could see upon his face a look of—what was it, annoyance? Disappointment?

The third party who would soon be reigning over it. Bernie was attentive and kind. He helped her with the dishes nights and brought her flowers and little parcels of fruit.

After supper he sat by the open window with his newspaper or together they went up onto the roof with camp chairs and cushions if it was very warm.

Annie viewed the universe through maternal eyes now. She looked at Bernie and thought how "boyish" he seemed, then she would urge him to go to the boat club for an evening or Saturday afternoon. He always protested, but always went. And once, at Annie's plea, joined the fellows in a camping trip for a week-end and a Monday holiday that followed it.

"I'm a beast," he whispered, "A selfish pig of a fellow! It was the surprise of it. Nan—why didn't you tell me sooner? Glad? Of course I'm glad. Proud's a peacock! We'll have to hustle round and give the little shaver a "um-dandy welcome!"

Annie snuggled to him as they leaned against the rough board wall of the boathouse, holding tight to his coat, her face hidden upon it.

Everything was all right now. She felt a bit hysterical and wobbly, but quite happy again. And they went home saying little, but in a gentle, sympathetic mood.

Two weeks later Annie gave up her place at the office and devoted her whole time and strength to the little house and preparations for the little third party who would soon be reigning over it. Bernie was attentive and kind. He helped her with the dishes nights and brought her flowers and little parcels of fruit.

After supper he sat by the open window with his newspaper or together they went up onto the roof with camp chairs and cushions if it was very warm.

Annie viewed the universe through maternal eyes now. She looked at Bernie and thought how "boyish" he seemed, then she would urge him to go to the boat club for an evening or Saturday afternoon. He always protested, but always went. And once, at Annie's plea, joined the fellows in a camping trip for a week-end and a Monday holiday that followed it.

LABELING THE WEATHER MAN.

"Lima butchers blame the high cost of meat partly on the weather man."—News item.
Poor old weatherman, who send us the rain and snow,
Who gives us God's sweet sunshine, and helps the crops to grow;
Who breathes the balmy winds and builds the bulky steer,
Why charge him with the selfish, heartless deeds of the thieving profiteer?

IN THE meantime congress, it is offered at New York, at the zone said is showing signs of perturbation over the demands of various individuals and organizations that love to bask in the limelight of public notice, for $3,069,000.00 to reduce the cost of living. That was a poser—that answer of Senator Townsend of Michigan—in connection with this modest request.

"The money," said he 'might be better spent in buying food than in further investigations."

Senator Townsend is chairman of the special sub-committee named to recommend measures to reduce prices. Every citizen of Allen county and of the legitimate trade territory of 30 miles round about Lima is interested in this matter of lowering the cost of living; and every honest man and woman in this territory should welcome any plan that promises to abate the nuisance—that conscienceless scoundrel, the profiteer.

For what in the world is the use of continually exhorting the grocer, the butcher, the baker and the candlestick maker, as long as this pestiferous juggler of figures and facts is allowed to ply his nefarious schemes? Your meat bills are high; they show no signs of abatement—practically none for bacon none at all, notwithstanding the large amount said to be ready for export via parcels post at an average of 27 cents per pound in packages.

You grumble and growl at the farmer, your grocer, your butcher, your produce man. Cut it out. Get down to the heart of the matter. Lend your assistance moral and otherwise to the officials, the Federated club women, the state and government prosecutors especially, to land this octopus that controls more than 75 per cent of the meats of the country in every stage of preparation, and practically all the poultry butter and eggs and other farm products incidental to the marketing of these staples of living.

A dozen members of the Lima Suburban Day Trades Association interviewed state without reservation that the visit of Thursday afternoon and evening last and fraternization with the big crowds at the Elida Pioneer picnic was one of the most pleasant experiences of their lives. There were more than 250 people at the special chicken dinner served by the church ladies of Elida to merchants and their wives. "Ladies night" was a social success, as was the day a business and fraternal venture that will pay big dividends.

Listen to this, you farmers who still use old Dobbin as a propelling or rather, drawing power in coming to town. The government at Washington has given notice of its intention to put up for sale at auction 1,540 sets of double harness and 110,000 halters (new). No minimum bid has been fixed and farmers and other users, says the notice from the war department, may offer proposals on any number their needs may demand. The stock is now in storage at San Antonio, Texas.

And here is another item that might interest the good housewives of old Shawnee. Sugarcreek and other enterprising agricultural districts: 50,000 camp kettles will be

That was a fine thought of the Y. W. club centre girls—the making arrangements to welcome the women and the girls of the country districts and neighboring towns on Wednesday, Suburban day. This is the nucleus of Lima's future Young Women's Christian Association; and those directing the work during this initial year of help from the U. S. government are building properly in announcing that it shall be the home of Allen County's women and girls. The rooms in the Morris Arcade are handsome and commodious, and the interest in the work is growing steadily under the energetic direction of the two secretaries, Miss Garm, of the industrial, and Miss Baer, of the recreational divisions and Mrs. Simonson, of the girls club which had already such a good start in their rooms in the Metropolitan block.

The girls and women who come to Lima on Wednesdays to do their trading are invited to make the rooms their stopping place while here; to check their parcels, to eat with the girls at their noonday luncheon hour if they choose, and to avail themselves of the many sources of information about the city which is on file and record there.

The Lima Times' Fascinating Fiction Feature

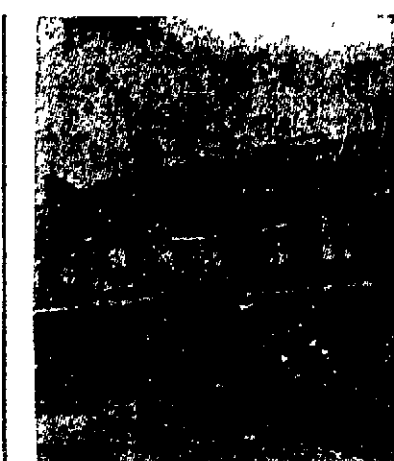

TODAY—"The Newcomes," by Thackeray.
TOMORROW—"Twenty Thousand Leagues Under the Sea," by Jules Verne.

THACKERAY III.

Unless one knows the rollicking humor of Thackeray as it lives in his burlesque and ballads, his whole genius can scarcely be appreciated. His early successes, signed by Titmarsh and Yellowplush, sparkling through the pages of Punch, with pungent satire and abounding buffoonery, contained many germs of his great novels. Parodies of famous contemporaries—Disraeli, Bulwer and others—made merry for Londoners in "Punch's Prize Novelists."

"The Legend of the Rhine" burlesques a novel of Dumas', but his masterpiece in this field is "Rowena and Rebecca," the brilliant and matchless burlesque of Scott's "Ivanhoe." It not only ripples along with broad roaring fun, but it is touched as well with pathos and genuine humor. Scattered through it are some of the best songs of their kind in English literature.

Thackeray's ease in rhyming was incomparable. While he possessed true poetic feeling, he particularly excelled in rollicking verse and in ballad-making. In this his characteristic pathos, his indignation at wrongs, and his distinctive sallies of fun especially shine. "The Willow Tree," "The White Squall," "The Mahogany Tree" and "The Sorrows of Werther" will always be dear to many. All true Bohemians will relish the "Ballad of Bouillabaisse." No doubt many of our boys "O'er There" have tasted the famous dish itself as well as the joys of fellowship and the pangs for comrades "gone west," so sympathetically sung in this ballad

"THE NEWCOMES"

By WILLIAM M. THACKERAY

(Condensation by Mr. Charles K. Bolton, Librarian of the Boston Athenaeum)

Colonel Thomas Newcome, the hero of Argon, and of Bantour, had loved the beautiful Lenore de Blois, but having incurred the wrath of his step-mother, he fled to India to carve out his career. There he had married the widow, Mrs. Ascey, and a few years later sent their son Clive to England. He regarded the ladies of the regiment with Clive's letters, sporting young men would give or take odds that the Colonel would mention Clive's name once before five minutes, or three times in ten minutes. But those who laughed at Clive's father laughed very kindly.

At last the happy time came for which the Colonel had been longing, and he took leave of his regiment. In England, he had in his family circle two half brothers, Sir Brian, who had married Lady Ann, Belize behaved so cruelly. She does not care a fig for him—not one fig. She is engaged, as you know, to my grandson Barnes; in all respects a most eligible union; and Ethel's engagement to my grandson Lord Kew, has long been settled. When we saw you in London, we heard that you too were engaged, to a young lady in your own rank of life—Miss Mackenzie.

Clive's departure led to more flirtations by Ethel than the old Lady Kew could countenance, but Ethel had found out how undesirable a man Lord Kew was, and broke the engagement so dear to her grandmother's heart.

When Clive heard that the engagement was over between Kew and Ethel he set out in haste for London. I was installed as confidant, and to me Clive said: "Mrs. Mackenzie bothers me so I hardly know where to turn, and poor little Rosey is made to write me a note about something twice a day. O Pen! I'm up another tree now!"

Clive met his cousin Ethel at a party or two in the ensuing weeks of the season, and at one of their meetings Ethel told him that her grandmother would not receive him. It was then that Clive thought Ethel worldly, although much of her attitude was due to the keen and unrelenting Lady Kew. The Colonel and James Binnie during all this time put their two fond heads together, and Mrs. Mackenzie flattered both of them and Clive as well.

Meanwhile the lady Clara was not happy with her Barnes. All the life and spirit had been crushed out of the girl, consigned to cruel usage, loneliness, and to bitter recollections of the past. Jack Belsize, now Lord Highgate, could stand the strain no longer, and took Lady Clara away from her bullying but cowardly husband. The elopement of Clara opened Ethel's eyes to the misery of loveless marriages, and the manna of her new love, the Marquis of Farintosh, already distressed over the unpleasant notoriety of the proposed Newcome alliance, received a letter from Ethel which set her son free.

Ethel then turned to the lonely, motherless children of her brother Barnes, and found comfort in devoting herself to them. Clive married his Rosey, and his father determined to become a member of Parliament in place of Sir Barnes. One night the Colonel, returning from his electioneering, met Clive, candle in hand. As each saw the other's face, it was a very sad and worn and pale, that Colonel Newcome with quite the tenderness of old days, cried "God bless me, my boy, how ill you look! Come and warm yourself, Clive!"

"I have seen a ghost, father," Clive said, "the ghost of my youth, father, the ghost of my happiness, and the best days of my life. I saw Ethel today."

"Nay, my boy, you mustn't talk to me so. You have the dearest little wife at home, a dear little wife and child."

"You had a wife, but that doesn't prevent other—other thoughts. Do you know you never spoke twice in your life about my mother? You didn't care for her."

"I—I did my duty by her," interposed the Colonel.

"I know, but your heart was with the other. So is mine. It's fatal, it runs in the family, father."

The shares of the Bundelcund Banking Company in which the Colonel had made his fortune now declined steadily, and at last the crash came, wiping out all the Colonel's money and with it all Rosey's fortune. The impoverished Newcomes settled down first at Boulogne, and then in London, the Colonel weary, feeble, white haired, Mrs. Mackenzie a perfect termagant, Rosey pale and ailing, and little Tommy, the baby, a comfort and a care to the hard-worked Clive.

The Colonel, no longer able to live under the same roof with Mrs. Mackenzie, found a home with the Grey Friars and there I saw him. His dear old head was bent down over his prayer book. He wore the black gown of the pensioners of the hospital of Grey Friars.

When the Colonel's misfortunes were at their worst, Ethel in reading an old book, found a letter from the Colonel's stepmother between the covers. It was a memorandum of a proposed bequest to Clive. Ethel at once determined to carry out this intended bequest, and so she and I hastened to Clive's home; but not even good news could soften Mrs. Mackenzie's evil temper. That was a sad and wretched night, in which Mrs. Mackenzie stormed until the poor delicate Rosey fell into the fever to which she owed her death. We soon repaired to the Grey Friars where we found that the Colonel was in his last illness. He talked loudly, he gave the word of command, spoke Hindostanee as if to his men. Then he spoke words in French rapidly, seizing a hand that was near him, and crying, "tousjours, toujours!" Ethel and Clive and the nurse were in the room with him. The old man talked on rapidly for awhile; then again he would sigh and be still; once more I heard him say, hurriedly, "Take care of him when I'm in India," and then with a faint, pleading voice he called for the love of his youth "Lenore, Lenore!" The patient's voice sank into faint murmurs; only a moan now and then announced that he was not asleep. At the usual evening hour the chapel bell began to toll, and Thomas Newcome's hands outside the bed feebly beat a time. And just as the last bell struck, a peculiar sweet smile shone over his face, and he lifted up his head a little, and quickly said, "Adieu," and fell back. It was the word we used at school, when names were called; and lo, he, whose heart was as that of a child, had answered to his name, and stood in the presence of The Master.

ONE WISH

(Dedicated to Judge Phil Crow.)

Of all the wishes we have made,
Like crystal bubbles burst and fade,
There's one we make—a hopeless dream,
Could we again be in our teens.
Scaling the roofs and climbing trees,
To catch a waft of the gentle breeze;
Viewing the landscape far away,
Where fairies romp the live long day.
Birds and blossoms and morning dew,
And the sky above in its richest hue;
Across the fields through wooded green,
Out again where the sunlight gleams.
Down in the swamp where the calamus grew,
Watching the crane as he upward flew;
Poking the front along the river side,
Innocent lad of approaching pride.
The summer's heat and the winter's snows,
Each bear fragrance in the after glow,
Millions of miles, all and knew it not,
Until money changed the boyhood plot.
Out of sweet dreams into dreary schemes,
Barter and trade, worry and wear,
Least some should get more than his share.
The wonderful speed since then and now,
No time to halt and wonder how;
The shifting scenes so rapid grow,
Until yesterday, they seemed so slow.
—C. W. WESTBAY.

SOLOMON'S WISDOM FAILED HIM ONCE

Tired of Books—But He Had None Such as
Now Exists

The wise Solomon said: "Of making books there is no end, and much study is a weariness of the flesh." But was he wise when he said that? We rather think he was very young—perhaps in his school days—because in our time only a school boy would think such a thing, much less say it.

The word "book" is a very old word, and has an interesting derivation. It runs through all the Teutonic tongues, and is thought to come from the Saxon word "boe" which meant "beech," the wood upon which the ancient Teutons wrote their runes, or poetry and sacred writings.

The word "write" is directly connected with the word "book," and comes from the German "reissen," to tear, meaning that the letters were cut in the wood, tearing it. Going back to Solomon again however, had The New Universities Dictionary been possible in his day, he would never have called study a weariness; but on the contrary, a fascinating pleasure. At least all those of our readers who take advantage of the wonderful distribution we are making of that volume call it a treasure. Our coupon offer, published daily in this paper explains how to get it.

Intermission was followed by Mr. Suhrie, on "Cutting the Dead Limbs From the Tree of Knowledge." The afternoon session opened with music, followed by Mr. Hulley on "Burns and His Humanity." This is considered by many his best literary lecture. Intermission "Conference on Current Educational Topics," Mr. Suhrie. Adjourned. The program for Tuesday is equally interesting: Morning session—Opening exercises; "Current Educational Literature for Teachers," Mr. Suhrie; intermission; "Browning and the Higher Life," Mr. Hulley. Noon. Afternoon—Opening, O. T. R. C. work, Wm. E. Kerschner; "Conference on Educational Topics," Mr. Suhrie. Intermission; "Eugene Field and the Children," Mr. Hulley. Dismissal.

On September 28 the county farm agents from the following counties will meet here with soils and crops specialists: Putnam, Paulding, DeKalb, Auglaize, Van Wert, Allen.

He expects to be home soon.

A Curtiss plane for carrying passengers at $1 per minute was here

Friday. Fifteen went up, giving up the good old coin, in these days of the h. c. l., for the experience. This had been a government plane, now the property of Lieutenant Runser, Detroit. R. F. Coon, Toledo, is the mechanic. The plane weighs a ton and carries two people only. It requires ten gallons of gasoline an hour and carries 20 gallons gas and four gallons of oil. It was a great novelty in this village. George Hipkins, of the firm of Hipkins, Schaefer & Co., made a trip carrying handbills announcing an aeroplane message to the people of the county, which he scattered as the plane passed over.

The grand jury, in session for some time probing the h. c. l., among other things, recessed Friday until Tuesday. Many witnesses have been called. No reports to be given out until the one in open court.

ESCAPED LUNATIC TAKEN AT WAPAK

WAPAKONETA, Aug. 19.—Jerome Glynn, 59, an escaped inmate of the Toledo State Hospital, was taken off an afternoon car of the W. O. by Deputy Sheriff Lear. Glynn has been missing from the hospital at Toledo for almost two months, and the authorities had been perplexed as to his whereabouts. A few weeks ago it was reported that he was at the home of a brother in St. Marys. After the local county authorities had received the notification of his presence there, the Sheriff went to St. Marys, but Glynn had decamped.

Miss Alvina Esser, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nick Esser, residing at the corner of Brighthorn and Lima streets, had a harrowing experience Saturday night about ten o'clock. She was returning to her home and when near the C. T. Koster residence on East Auglaize street, a stranger, who had been following her for a few blocks, overtook her and made attempts to detain her. Mrs. Chas. Metzger, who was about a block away to the east, and John Rempfer, a block to the west, hurried to her assistance after she had screamed for help.

YOUNG MAN KILLED BY A FAST TRAIN

VAN WERT, Aug. 19.—Organization of the Van Wert country dry federation for the coming year was effected at the meeting held Sunday at the school house grounds and attended by representatives from all parts of the county.

The meeting was presided over by Rev. J. L. Corley and the chief address was made by F. L. Dustman, of Westerville, formerly of Van Wert and well known as one of the dry leaders of the state.

The general officers of the organization are as follows: President, J. L. Corley; vice president, F. E. Longwell; secretary, William McGirt; treasurer, F. W. Leslie; manager, J. P. Sharkey.

Everett L. Armstrong, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lafa Armstrong of north of Middle Point, was killed when the horse and buggy in which he was returning home was struck at the Main street crossing of the Pennsylvania tracks in Middle Point by train No. 42.

It is not known exactly how the accident occurred. Armstrong was still living when found after the accident, but was badly mangled and lived only a short time after being brought to the Van Wert hospital where he was given all the aid possible.

A large barn on the William Jones farm in York township was struck by lightning during the storm and completely destroyed by fire together with three horses, a calf and much grain. Two of the horses were the property of Thomas Rauch, the tenant and the third was owned by his brother Reuben Rauch. The entire hay and wheat crops from the farm were lost, and implements, harness and other farm property were also consumed.

Little Hope of Giants Obtaining Pennant is Being Entertained—Binland's Future To Be Decided.

-BOXING-SPORTS*REDS MUST BREAK EVEN IF THEY COP THE OLD PENNANT

If They Take 17 Out of Remaining 34, Flag is Theirs—Giants Must Win 26 Out of 40

(BY JAMES F. HURRA)

People, in the olden days, often wondered what made the wild men of Borneo wild. We give it up unless it was having the "one born every minute" looking at them. But what we started to say is one doesn't have to figure very hard to see what makes one Jaw McGraw wild.

That gentleman, along with his arrogant gang of national pastimers has practically been put clear out of the running as far as the National League race is concerned. Oh, yes, we know it's a little soon to be nailing the flag on a pole in the Red-leg park, but we are pretty sure Muggsy McGraw will not select the rag this season.

In fact, New York fans, whether they be followers of the Yankees, or whether they carry a rabbit's foot for the Giants will not have the pleasure of watching the breezes gently play upon a pennant shaped flag in a New York ball yard. If they do, their form is all wrong.

As far as the Reds and the Giants are concerned in this race, yesterday passed unnoticed, for the proverbial J. Pluvius gazed down upon the ducks and ducklings, and feeling sorry for them, gave us a ducking. The said ducking not only over Lima, but it stopped two perfectly good ball games. One between the Reds and the Dodgers, and the other between the Giants and the Cubs.

As a result the standing is just the same as it was when you looked at the Baseball Calendar yesterday. Now when you stop and figure just how the Ohio favorites stand as compared with the Giants, and you will trail along with us.

After losing four of its six games with Cincinnati, the Giants to overcome the Reds lead of six games must win 26 of their remaining 40 games of the season, while the Red-legs need win only 17 out of their 34, a respective ratio of 650 and 500. We leave it to you, whose chances look the best.

The poor old Yankees will have to battle hard if they keep out of the second division. The three leading teams, in the American League, are: Chicago, Detroit and Cleveland have gone way ahead of the New York gang, and it's a lead pipe that pennant will go to a Western Club. Just who is going to finish first in the newer league, however, is hard to say for the Tiger's are hot after the Sox, and the Indiana are pulling the beattie's tail.

It's too wild a hope to ever dream of seeing the World's Series pulled off between the two Ohio teams, but, Oh, Boy, wouldn't it be a treat. Well, at all events it's a pretty sure bet the two rags will go to western teams, and that will help some. And it is our opinion some of the Limalites will do a Donerail to Cincinnati and watch one World's Series game, at least.

BINLAND'S FUTURE SOON BE DECIDED

Will Be Given Week's Rest and Then Sent to Farm If He Doesn't Improve

SPRINGFIELD, O., Aug. 19.—Binland, 2:03 3-4 owned by W. L. Snyder, will be given a complete rest of a week, and, if he is not over his lameness by that time, he will be sent to Park farm, his shoes pulled off and he will be turned out for the remainder of the season.

That was the decision arrived at yesterday by Trainer Frank Hedrick after he had given him a slow workout. Hedrick admitted that he did not like him, and added that he was going to try a new treatment. He said that he was convinced that the lameness was the result of a strain and that complete rest should benefit the trouble.

When Hedrick mentioned about sending him to the farm and turning the son of Binjolla out for the remainder of the season, he was asked if that meant his permanent retirement from the turf. He replied: "I think not. At least I hope that Mr. Snyder will give him a chance to try for the world's stallion record, for I am confident that he can lower it."

THROUGH THE SPORTSCOPE

Never mind looking at the standing. They are just the same as they were yesterday.

Here's hoping the Reds break even for the rest of the season and then we get that box at the series.

Some way or another we simply can't get a sorry feeling over the way the Giants have been treated.

Anyway, even if the Giants would have copped the flag, it would only have been another disappointment for Gotham fans in the series.

We are looking forward to Labor Day when sport will reign supreme in Lima.

Even city council will sport. It has called off its regular meeting on Labor Day and will hold Ladies Night on the following Tuesday.

Ray Schalk's New Record

CHICAGO, Aug. 19.—Ray Schalk, catcher for the Chicago American league club today set a new mark when he went behind the plate in his team's game with Philadelphia. It was the one hundredth game he has caught this season and marked the seventh consecutive season that he has accomplished this mark.

Schalk's nearest rival was George Gibson, former catcher for the Pittsburgh National league team, for whom he can hit 100 games for six seasons, but not consecutively.

The trotting gelding, Tommy Direct that recently won on the Grand Circuit and secured a record of 2:08 1/2, is the same Tommy Direct that was raced for several seasons on the Buckeye half-mile tracks at the pace. An emissary of the Pacific Coast league visited Hickey this week to arrange for the continuation of the games on the Pacific coast but all the angles of this phase of the Class AA championship series have not entirely developed. It is a good bet, however, that the A. A. I. winner will move to California after finishing the first half of the series and meet the Coast league title holder.

MUNICIPALITIES IN LABOR CONFERENCE

LIMA OFFICIALS GO TO CONFER ON THE O. E. STRIKE CASE

Mayor Simpson and Solicitor Light are in Springfield Today

OTHER CITIES ACTING

Company Reluctant to Admit Third Party Into the Dispute

Mayor Simpson and City Solicitor Light left this morning shortly before 11 o'clock, for Springfield, where they will attend a conference between mayors of various cities on the Ohio Electric system and officials of the company today.

This meeting was discussed by mayors and officials of other cities Sunday night, and Mayor Evans, of Zanesville, communicated with Simpson in an endeavor to persuade him to attend. Evans at the time stated no conference had been arranged, but the committee of mayors would force a conference with officials of the company.

This, Mayor Simpson refused to do. He did, however, consent to attend the conference in the event it could successfully be arranged with officials of the company. Early this morning, Mayor Evans called Mayor Simpson over the telephone and informed him the conference has been arranged, so Simpson and Light left the city for Springfield. The conference has been called for 3 o'clock.

Officials of the city of Springfield feel confident today's meeting will eventuate a settlement and expressed their hopes that the service will be resumed tomorrow.

Dana Stevens, vice president of the railway, last night stated he is opposed to a third party endeavoring to settle the strike, and he refused to state what the attitude of the company is in the meanwhile only three small divisions out of Dayton are operating. No violence of any kind has been reported, and no car in the any of the striking divisions has left the barn.

TELEPHONE LINEMEN CONTINUE ON STRIKE; ORGANIZER IS HERE

The strike situation of the linemen employed by the Lima Telephone and Telegraph company remains the same. No negotiations have been started and both the company and the strikers are sitting quietly in the road. However, Raymond E. Brown, representative of the Electrical Workers, arrived in Lima this morning and it is anticipated some move toward a settlement will be made.

George Matthews, general manager of the company, this morning stated that the strike is an experienced and one that has been as long as could be expected. As he says, the strike is the worst the greatest hardships upon the lines.

It is anticipated no strike breakers will be employed to maintain the service. It is what will be done in the future is not known.

There are no grounds for the rumor that the telephone linemen's strike is the result of the failure of employees of the Ohio Electric Railway company and that concern effecting a settlement officials said this morning.

Two Injured in Auto Accident

Mrs. Carl Huber, Dayton and Mrs. Lewis Smithson, Tipton, Ind., were slightly injured about 6:30 o'clock Monday evening when they were struck by a Ford automobile at the intersection of Market and West streets. According to witnesses the women were crossing West street, going west on Market. As they waited for a wagon going south to pass, the Ford going in the same direction crowded them and the wagon, to avoid another machine.

Mrs. Huber was thrown to the pavement, between the feet of the horse pulling the wagon. Her ear was cut and necessitated taking three stitches. Mrs. Smithson was also bruised. Mrs. Huber was removed in the Williams and Davis ambulance to the Frank Seiber home where she is visiting.

REVISION OF CITY MARKET LAW IS ORDERED BY DADS

City council, at its regular meeting last night, took its first step in an effort to reduce the high cost of living in Lima, and as a result it is probable the market house ordinance will be revised and a plan worked out whereby foodstuff at that institution may be secured cheaper.

It was cited that the market house has not been a success in the sense in which it was originally planned. There are dealers occupying the house who simply purchase goods from wholesalers, when council declares the building was originally put up for the purpose of buying direct from the producer.

It was suggested that Marketmaster Herbolzheimer donate stalls free of all charge to farmers and trucksters desiring to sell home raised foods to the public. It was shown that the marketmaster has already offered free stalls, and can find no farmers nor trucksters to take advantage of the offer.

It was then suggested that some effort be made to regulate the sale of produce and vegetables from wagons travelling the streets. If this is stopped, those making the sales at present will be forced to take their goods to the markethouse it was cited.

President Dempster then made a rather lengthy talk in which he suggested council, or the Chamber of Commerce or some other organization to get behind the move and promote more gardens in this city. He believed this is the correct way to battle the cost of living.

The matter will be further discussed at the adjourned meeting next Monday night councilmen declared.

EPIDEMIC IS PROVING SERIOUS AT SPENCERVILLE

An old fashioned disease known as flux, and prevalent in and around Spencerville about 20 years ago, has again made its appearance and has claimed the lives of two children, and more than a half a hundred are ill. Sixteen new cases were reported in two hours in one day. How the disease got a foothold in the community is not known. The majority of the afflicted are children, as it is very prevalent among children.

POLICE AND FIREMEN GET WAGE INCREASE

Members of the Lima police and fire departments will receive an increase of $10 per month, it was decided at council last night. The matter was recommended by the finance committee and passed unanimously.

Common laborers will in the future receive a wage of 45 cents and firemen 50 cents per hour. Humane officers were granted a $20 increase and will receive $19 per month now. Request for these increases were received some time ago, and the finance committee prepared the recommendation. The new wage will become effective as soon as the necessary legislation is enacted which, according to City Solicitor Light, will be next Monday night.

ALLEGES GROSS NEGLIGENCE

Charging gross neglect of duty Sylvia Bowersock this morning in common pleas court, filed suit for divorce from Harry Bowersock. She says he had failed to provide for her since marriage, and he cursed and calls her vile names. She further says, then under the influence of intoxicating liquors he strikes at her and threatens her. She asked that her maiden name, Sylvia Souder, be restored her. The couple were married March 10, 1910, in Lima.

DR. HITCHCOCK'S FUNERAL

Rev. Mills will conduct funeral services for Dr. S. A. Hitchcock who died Monday morning at the City hospital. The services will be held at 10 o'clock Wednesday morning at the Elida M. E. church, and burial will be made in Greenlawn cemetery. The members of the I. O. O. F. lodge of Elida of which the deceased was a member will conduct their ritualistic services at the grave.

DIES AT STATE HOSPITAL

Bennett P. Trump, 38 years of age, for the past several months a patient at the Lima state hospital died at the hospital yesterday following a short illness. His remains were shipped to Cincinnati for burial.

BOND ISSUES TO BE RESUBMITTED TO LIMA'S VOTERS

Municipal Lighting Plan is Included in the Six Proposals

BOULEVARD CASE UP

City Finds Itself Without Any Contract For Electric Lighting

Citizens of Lima, as a result of a petition presented council last night by the Citizens' Committee, will be given another opportunity to vote upon the six bond issues which were voted down at the recent primary election.

The petition set forth, owing to the fact that the municipal lighting system came nearer winning out than any of the issues, it is only justice to the people to let it be voted upon at the coming November election when the most votes will be polled. Councilman Stiles then moved, seconded by Grebling, that all bond issues be re-submitted to the people.

A rather heated argument then arose among members of council relative to the boulevard lighting system. It is City Solicitor Light's discussion that the boulevard lights have no place in the bond issue. His contention is, the merchants practically agreed to have this system in the business district, and to pay for it. When it is voted upon by the people all over the city, the merchants will not pay for it any more than will the man living in the extreme sections of the city.

Councilman Foster said: "It is my opinion that those now pulling for the boulevard lighting system are the ones who threw the wrench in the machine, as council was going ahead, when they stepped in and included it in the entire lighting system."

Councilman-at-Large Berry declared his intention of taking some steps toward securing lights for the city immediately. He dwelt upon the conditions of the present lighting system, and when informed that the light contract with The Ohio Electric Railway company had expired, and the company can not be made to maintain their lights under present conditions he then declared a new contract with the company should be drawn up, even if only temporarily.

Morey questioned Light as to just what section of this city the business district included, and just how much of the city will be the boulevard light system. Light told him and then Morey accused Light of cutting the South Side off the boulevard light system and Light replied, "Your ignorance is profound, Mr. Morey."

City Solicitor Light was instructed to draw up the necessary legislation and it will be presented for a vote of council at an adjourned meeting, next Monday night.

Car Inspectors Charged With Many Robberies

The two car inspectors, D. W. Rice, 60, 317 South Scott street, and Harry McDonald, 658 North Jackson street, were arraigned in police court this morning on a charge of grand larceny, and after pleading not guilty their hearings were set for next Tuesday morning. The affidavits upon which the men were arraigned were signed by a Baltimore and Ohio railroad detective. The men were released under $1000 bond. Late yesterday afternoon police searched the homes of the two men and articles of all kinds, alleged to have been stolen from the cars, were brought to police headquarters. According to railroad detectives, the cars have been systematically robbed for many months past.

LAST CHILDS PICNIC TO BE HELD FRIDAY

The last picnic of the season to be given by the Child's Welfare Association, will take place Friday, August 22, and promises to be the largest and most successful one held. It will be along the same lines as the previous ones except a wholly new program will prevail, and it will be more extensive.

If on Friday, the street car strike is still in effect, auto trucks will be provided and the children will be hauled from the various playgrounds to City park to participate in the affair.

Arrangements are being made today for an exhibition of child handwork. This exhibition will consist of various work done by the children at the playgrounds will be shown in Blum's window.

Coroner Holds Inquiry Into Auto Disaster

Dr. A. C. Adams, Allen county coroner held an inquest yesterday into the deaths of the five persons when the auto in which they were riding was struck by a Western Ohio Interurban car Friday evening, at the crossing this side of Bluffton. Four employees of the Western Ohio railway testified as did O. E. Bowers, Beavertown, who was near the crossing when the accident occurred.

The four employees testified that they distinctly remembered that the Motorman Kelley, of Wapakoneta, blew the whistle before he came to the crossing. Kelley stated that when he saw the auto it was only a short distance from him, and that he turned off the power and put on the brakes, but could not stop the heavy car until it was beyond the crossing where the unfortunate persons lost their lives.

NEW CHARTER TO COME UP AGAIN

The commission form of government for Lima will also be voted upon at the coming election, as the resolution and ordinances were read and passed upon last night. This question was to have been voted upon at the Primary election, but owing to a hitch in the legal proceedings only 57 days elapsed between the time the legislation was voted upon and the election, when the law says they must be at least 60 days pass.

BASEBALL POOL IS PLACED UNDER BAN BY POLICE DEPT.

Hangers-on around the various cigar stores in the city who conduct and play baseball pools will have to be contented with simply watching the score of the games, or seek a new diversion, for late yesterday afternoon detectives ordered the said cigar stores to cease operating the pools.

This game is a great blow to the habitués of these cigar stores as many a dollar was picked up in the course of a season by lucky drawers.

Police Chief O. J. Roush yesterday asked Prosecutor Cable to pledge his support in the elimination of baseball pools. Immediately following this conference between the chief and the prosecutor the order was issued.

It is probable, authorities state, the punch-board will follow the pool, as it is claimed that it is not justice to the operators of the pools to close them and allow boards to run. These punch boards were put out of business some years ago, but under the present regime of the safety department they were allowed to operate again.

SUGGESTION MADE TO SUBURBAN DAY PROMOTERS IN LIMA

Here is a chance for the Suburban Day Trade Association to immortalize itself. Out in Davenport, Iowa, when the street railway men struck, the merchants got together and immediately put into service on the streets dozens of motor trucks and even their private cars. The "Hop In" club was inaugurated, and cards were placed on the sides of these trucks and cars reading: "Hop In - You're Welcome." These sub-streets the very first day of the total suspension of street car service. A Music Company of the city was the first to make the announcement that it was ready to transport its customers or make immediate delivery of telephone orders.

The scheme proved an immense hit. In addition to the insertion of a certain humorous and semi-venturous note into a serious problem traders were able to be of definite and substantial assistance to the shopping public as well as to the hundreds of workers who otherwise would have had long and weary trips between their homes and their offices or workshops. This would seem to be a pretty good scheme for Lima.

Of course there are some who, as in every contingency in life are expecting to reap a rich harvest out of the situation by resolving themselves into taxi bandits temporarily, but with two great motor truck manufacturing plants, and hundreds of trucks stored in long rows in front of the plants, idle, it looks as by instituting also a "Hop In Club."
